

You are free to download, copy, translate or adapt this story and use the illustrations as long as you attribute in the following way:

Amara and animals

Author - Judy B. Maranga

Illustration - Sarah Bouwer

Language - English

Level - Longer paragraphs

© Judy B.maranga 2015

Creative Commons: Attribution 4.0

Source www.africanstorybook.org

Amara and animals

Judy B. Maranga

Sarah Bouwer

English

Amara was nine years old. She went to Kerema primary school. Her favorite subjects were English, Science and Social Studies.

She wanted to be a lawyer when she grew up. Amara loved animals very much.

Amara lived with her mother, Margy.
She was a very hardworking farmer.

Amara's father died when she was 5 years old.

Afterwards, Amara's mother apologised for being mean and cruel to Simba. Amara was happy that her mother accepted her dog at last.

When Amara is in school her mother feeds Simba. Her mother's friends have learned to be good to their dogs.

When Amara was not at school, she spent her time with Mbisa, the goat.

She cleaned and fed it.

Amara also had her pet, Simba. Her mother did not like dogs very much, but she let Amara keep Simba.

Whenever Simba disturbed her, she would shout, "Go away before I kick you out." Amara felt sad.

When Amara went to the house, she called Simba out. Simba was very obedient to Amara.

After the meal, the visitors said, "We'll also treat our dogs well like Amara. We mistreat them and yet they are so helpful."

Amara did not hear her mother calling because they were busy playing.

One Saturday, they had visitors from the women's group.

Amara was happy that her mother's friends had come with their children. They could play football.

Her mother had prepared the food that the group liked.

Amara was reminded by her mother to keep Simba locked up. It barked at strangers.

Amara did not lock up Simba well. The visitors were surprised to see the dog in the room.

Mama Oto asked, "Why do you allow the dog to come inside the house?"

Amara's mother called Amara to come and take Simba out.